“ My grandmother was called home and wrapped in the loving arms of our Father. She no longer has earthly pain and for this I am grateful. The feeling is undescrivable sadness mixed with happiness, loneliness mixed with all the loving support of a room filled with her treasured loved ones. We are forever blessed to have all been raised with an iron fist and tender heart. She has passed on so many great qualities to all of us to carry out her legacy of strength and dignity.

These past few weeks have been difficult to say the least but to be able to care for my grandmother in her final days was such a blessing that can't be described. She loved being surrounded by all of us during her transition to heaven.

Do not take family for granted love them with all you have to give and then love them a little more because that is what she did. We all knew how very much we were loved, I mean she couldn't hide it if she wanted to. Her face lit up with just the sight of her loved ones. If I could bottle that expression I would give it to everyone so they could feel the love that we all felt. That's the love we should all strive to give. We love you Abuelita!

Forever in our hearts

“ My beautiful grandma, oh how I adored you. I have tried not to cry but I can't help but feel your absence. You will always be the matriarch of our family and I am so glad to have been raised with such a strong women in my life. Your love was plentiful and endless, I know because I can still feel it. I made a hamburger today and thought of you, not because mine tasted as good, but because I hope that one day my cooking will be just as special to my own grandkids.

I'm taking care of your plants and trying my best not to kill them, but you must know that I already knocked it over by accident. I remember when I could not visit you without knocking down one of your plants. I still do it. I will miss our phone conversations and the way your face lit up when you saw me or my family. I'm afraid I will forget what that looks like, but I know deep down you won't let me. I love you with all my heart and miss you like crazy. It hurts to feel this but I know you are finally resting your tired body and for that I am grateful. I love you always and forever. Until we meet again...

“ Oh my beautiful mom, I am so proud to have been your only son. To have been born on your birthday and both of our births on a Good Friday is truly a blessing. We shared so much together, especially when you would intently listen to me. Then tell me something that would make me laugh out loud. I will miss you from now until I see you again. I love you mom forever and ever. Lord receive this loving, caring, beautiful mother, grandmother, great grandmother, great great grandmother to your graceful arms.
