“ Francis was more of an uncle to me than a cousin - someone you could find comfort in talking with. He was always kind to people. He had a great sense of humor. He could make anyone smile with his sideward glance and a little smirk. He was a stronghold in our family through good times and sad so will dearly be missed. I have full faith that he is in the arms of our family in heaven.

“ I hear Francis's voice, as he called me "Danuszka", when he leaned in for a hug; he was gentle and kind, to everyone, especially to his elders. Even though they were as close as siblings, he always respected my parents, addressing my mother as "Aunty Bincia", and my father as "Chief"! Francis let my father feel that he was "Chief" of the many projects they worked on together, including the Green Gables garage. We have many warm memories, and I will be ever joyful for the Green Gables house design, as another of Francis's most visible legacies to us.

“ I too have been thinking about how for all of my life and even the last time I saw Francis at the office where I work he would greet me by saying "jak sie macz Vickcha"? I don't think I ever heard him call me just plain Vicky! I have also been lovingly thinking about how he used to drive me home in his old Oldsmobile like we were in a parade and everyone should be looking at us.....he sure loved his old cars! I will miss Francis and his quiet, gentle and thoughtful ways.
