“ My heart is aching for you and your family. I know the pain of this loss and that no words are enough to reach the depths of that sorrow. Just know that others care and will be there for you when needed.

“ There are no words I can say but to tell you that you ALL are in my prayers. I spoke with Kyle briefly last Spring and he was so proud of his achievement of becoming a cadet and making posit life changes. Even though our families have been at odds; I want you to know how very sorry I am for your loss and will continue to pray for healing and peace.

“ Kyle stayed with us for a few months. In that time, I got to know him a little bit. (Teenagers don't always let you in to their lives too much.) I loved his smile and his laugh. He was always courteous and kind, with a soft spoken way about him. I saw him a couple weeks ago and he had the biggest smile on his face. Even though he wasn't my child, I feel like he was part of our family. I tried to make sure he had food and shelter. I am glad he was part of my life for a little while. He will be remembered always, and missed greatly. Rest in peace my friend.
