“ What can I say, but it's hard to accept this. I love you. You always called me back or texted me if you missed my call. We talked all of the time and helped me. You made me laugh a lot! You always helped me feel better and understood what I am going through. You told me recently "take it one day at a time." So, this advice now pertains to how my heart aches and I am in pain that you are not here anymore. You truly are my best friend. I am glad we were able to share the last few days together. You showed me the best Mexican restaurant and that was a great dinner. You were kind, hilarious, generous, funny, truthful, beautiful, smart, reliable, dedicated, determined, a light that shined on all of us. You were supposed to come over 4 days ago. You always found time to help people. I miss our time together and long talks. I always knew not to call you on Sundays because you spent your time with your family. We had fun times at D6. I asked God why he took you from us. He replied, "because she deserves it." He meant He wanted you in heaven and you deserve happiness and to be pain free in Heaven. Thank you my friend for just being you. ❤️🙏

“ Not only were you my sister but also my best friend. I will miss talking to you every day and having our amazing laughs at the dumbest things or even laughing at your FaceTime calls with the doggy pictures. I will miss waking up to your good morning pictures from you and fernie. I will dearly miss you my best friend. You were an amazing tia to my grandkids and I never got to say thank you enough before you left us. You will forever be in our hearts. Rest In Peace we will always love you.

*I stood up in their wedding as the flower girl.
I'm Steven's cousin.
I can't believe she passed so soon. This wasn't supposed to happen. I just think people shouldn't have to pass away.
Seeing these photos makes it really hit home. I'm just the cousin, but I did love her.
In my mind I thought she would have lived long enough to retire and get to grow old after a while with Steven.
I send my prayers to the family.*
